Spike Spiegel

Human · Monk (Warrior of the Open Hand) 14 / Rogue (Assassin) 6 · Criminal · a cowboy, a Jericho 941, and whatever it is he's got instead of luck

Built on the 2024 rules, canon-first, from the twenty-six sessions and the film. A man, all the way through: no serum, no machine, no gate. What he has is Jeet Kune Do, a 9mm, a ship, a cybernetic eye that sees the past, and the fact that he keeps not dying when he should. The sheet is sized to that: human-peak numbers, and the luck written down where the show put it.

Design calls. Monk is the body: Jeet Kune Do is the Open Hand with the names filed off, Deflect Attacks is a man who dodges bullets at arm's length, Evasion is the window, Stunning Strike is the punch that ends a fight. Rogue (Assassin) is the Red Dragon: he was a hitman before he was a cowboy, and the syndicate is where the Sneak Attack with a pistol comes from. Lucky is the point: six Luck Points a day is the fall from the cathedral, the monorail, the hospital, and the stairs at the end, and Nine Lives is the once he shouldn't have walked away from and did. Everything on the sheet is a thing a person could do. That's the show's whole argument.

Snapshot: The Real Folk Blues, level 20 (Monk 14 / Rogue 6)

Spike Spiegel

Medium Humanoid (Human), twenty-seven, 2071 · the blue suit and the yellow shirt, a Jericho 941, a knife, a cigarette, and a bag of grenades on the last day · "Whatever happens, happens."

AC 17 (Unarmored Defense) · HP 183 (Tough) · Speed 65 ft, and walls and water are floor (Acrobatic Movement) · Initiative +11 (Alert) with advantage (Assassinate) · Proficiency +6 · Focus 14 · Luck Points 6

STR	DEX	CON	INT	WIS	CHA
10 (+0)	20 (+5)	15 (+2)	10 (+0)	14 (+2)	10 (+0)

Saves all six (Disciplined Survivor): Str +6, Dex +11, Con +8, Int +6, Wis +8, Cha +6; 1 Focus rerolls a failure · Skills Acrobatics +17, Stealth +17, Perception +14, Sleight of Hand +17 (expertise), Insight +8, Athletics +6, Intimidation +6, Survival +8 · Reliable Talent · Tools thieves' tools, disguise kit, poisoner's kit, a pilot's hands (vehicles: space) · Languages Common, Mandarin, Japanese, Thieves' Cant

Defenses. Deflect Attacks: a reaction takes 1d10+19 off any attack that hits him, bullets included (Deflect Energy); if that empties it, 1 Focus throws it back for 2d10+5. Uncanny Dodge if he'd rather halve. Evasion. Patient Defense (1 Focus): Dodge as a bonus action with 2d10 temporary HP. Self-Restoration. Lucky: a Luck Point gives him advantage on a d20 test, or puts disadvantage on an attack against him. Nine Lives: once per long rest, when something would drop him to 0, he is at 1 instead; he will not say how.

Attacks. Jeet Kune Do: unarmed strike +11, 1d10+5 bludgeoning, two per Attack action, three more from Flurry of Blows (1 Focus), each able to Topple (Dex DC 16 or prone), Push (15 ft) or Addle (no reactions). Stunning Strike once a turn (1 Focus): Con DC 16 or Stunned until his next turn. Stop-Hit (1 Focus): a reaction when a creature within 5 ft misses him with a melee attack: one unarmed strike. Jericho 941: +11, 1d10+5 piercing, 40/120, Light, no Loading, two per Attack action, no penalty point-blank (Sharpshooter); a second one in the off hand some days (Nick). Sneak Attack +3d6 once a turn with the pistol or the knife, with advantage or an ally beside the target; Assassinate: in the first round, advantage on anyone who hasn't acted and +6 on the Sneak Attack. Knife +11, 1d4+5, thrown 20/60; it went into Pierrot's leg. Grenade (replaces an attack): 10-ft radius within 60 ft, Dex DC 16, 3d6, half on a save.

Feats Alert, Lucky, Sharpshooter, Speedy, Tough, +1 Dex +1 Wis · Monk 14 Martial Arts d10, Flurry of three, Step of the Wind, Deflect Energy, Evasion, Stunning Strike, Empowered Strikes, Acrobatic Movement, Heightened Focus, Self-Restoration, Disciplined Survivor, Open Hand Technique, Wholeness of Body (4 a day, 2d10+2), Fleet Step · Rogue 6 Expertise ×4, Cunning Action, Steady Aim, Cunning Strike (Trip, Withdraw, Poison), Uncanny Dodge, Assassinate, Assassin's Tools

The eye. His left eye is cybernetic; he says one of them sees the past and the other the present. Advantage on Insight checks against anyone he has watched fight before, and he is never surprised by a move he has seen (Alert covers the rest). The Swordfish II: a mono-racer: speed 800 ft, AC 18, 150 HP, a nose cannon (4d10) and four missiles (6d8); he is the best pilot in the system and the sheet is not for dogfights. Cooking: bell peppers and beef, no beef.

How he fights. First: hands, feet, and the floor. Flurry with a Topple, a Stunning Strike on the second hit, the pistol into whatever's still standing with a Sneak Attack. Second: the Jericho from the hip at anyone further than a kick. He deflects what he can see coming and spends luck on what he can't. He does not plan, he does not take cover, and he does not run, and once in a while that is the point: the cathedral, the monorail, the stairs.

Build, level by level

Point buy 10 / 15 / 14 / 10 / 13 / 10, Criminal +2 Dex, +1 Con. Monk first for Dex and Str saves and because the hands came before the gun. Four General feats, two Origin (Alert from the background, Lucky from the Human).

Lvl	Class	What you get	Where in the story
1	Monk 1	Martial Arts, Unarmored Defense; Alert, Lucky	Born on Mars, 2044. A street kid who fights
2	Monk 2	Focus, Unarmored Movement, Uncanny Metabolism	Jeet Kune Do: be like water
3	Monk 3	Open Hand Technique, Deflect Attacks	The Red Dragon Syndicate takes him in; Vicious at his side
4	Monk 4	Sharpshooter (+1 Dex → 18)	The syndicate's gun
5	Monk 5	Extra Attack, Stunning Strike	Jobs, hits, and a reputation
6	Monk 6	Empowered Strikes, Wholeness of Body	The eye lost; the eye replaced
7	Rogue 1	Expertise (Stealth, Acrobatics), Sneak Attack 1d6	Julia
8	Rogue 2	Cunning Action	A plan to run, and a betrayal
9	Rogue 3	Assassin: Assassinate, Assassin's Tools; Steady Aim	2068: he fakes his death and leaves the Dragon
10	Rogue 4	Speedy (+1 Dex → 19)	Jet Black and the Bebop. A bounty hunter
11	Rogue 5	Cunning Strike, Uncanny Dodge, Sneak Attack 3d6	Asimov Solensan and the Red Eye
12	Rogue 6	Expertise (Perception, Sleight of Hand)	Faye; Ein; Ed. Bounties that mostly get away
13	Monk 7	Evasion	Ballad of Fallen Angels: the cathedral, and the window
14	Monk 8	Tough	The hospital, and the dream
15	Monk 9	Acrobatic Movement	Jupiter Jazz: Vicious again, Gren's song
16	Monk 10	Heightened Focus, Self-Restoration	Pierrot le Fou
17	Monk 11	Fleet Step; Martial Arts d10	Knockin' on Heaven's Door: Vincent, twice
18	Monk 12	+1 Dex (20), +1 Wis (14)	Hard Luck Woman; the Bebop comes apart
19	Monk 13	Deflect Energy	The Real Folk Blues: Julia dies in the rain
20	Monk 14	Disciplined Survivor	The Red Dragon tower. Vicious. The stairs. “Bang.”

Snapshots by arc, with the feat checked

The Red Dragon

before the show; the flashbacks · ages 17 to 24 · Levels 1–9 · Monk 1–6, Rogue 1–3

Dex 18, Con 15 · AC 16 · HP up to 72 · fists 1d6+4, five a turn from level 5 · Stunning Strike · the Jericho with Sneak Attack from level 7 · Assassinate from level 9

The feat, checked. A syndicate hitman is an Assassin with a pistol: advantage on the first round against anyone who hasn't moved, a Sneak Attack with the rogue level on top, and a Stunning Strike for the one who has. The eye is a wound the sheet does not roll for. Faking his death is a Deception check he was always going to pass, because the man checking was Vicious.

Asimov, and the window

Asteroid Blues; Ballad of Fallen Angels · 2071 · Levels 10–14 · Rogue 4–6, Monk 7–8

AC 17 · HP 95 → 128 · Uncanny Dodge, Evasion · Tough

The feat, checked. Asimov on Red Eye is a Thug under Haste with a knife: three attacks, 40 feet of speed, and Spike loses the brawl because the sheet says a man with two attacks and a 2d10+5 Flurry doesn't beat a man with four; he wins the fight with the pistol, which is Sneak Attack from behind a car. The cathedral is Vicious, CR 13 with a katana and a sword saint's AC, and it ends with Spike shot, cut, and out a stained-glass window: a fall of 40 feet is 4d6, Evasion is not for falls, and the reason he lives is three Luck Points on the Con save in the hospital and the thing the sheet calls Nine Lives. The show calls it a dream he never woke up from.

Pierrot le Fou

session 20 · the man who can't be hit · Level 16 · Monk 10 / Rogue 6

HP 145 · Flurry of three · Heightened Focus

The feat, checked. Mad Pierrot is a CR 15 with a flying speed, a personal force field that eats every attack (immunity to all damage from attacks, as written), and a Gatling gun. Spike cannot hurt him and the sheet agrees: five strikes a turn into immunity is zero. He wins with a knife thrown into the one place the field doesn't cover, a called shot at disadvantage for 1d4+5, and the fact that Pierrot is afraid of cats. The DM is allowed to say that. The show did.

Vincent

Knockin' on Heaven's Door · the film · Level 17 · Monk 11 / Rogue 6

HP 157 · Martial Arts d10 · Fleet Step

The feat, checked. Vincent Volaju is a CR 14 special-forces ghost who can't be killed by the thing he's carrying and fights with a knife at Spike's own level. The first fight on the monorail is a loss: Spike takes a knife in the gut (a crit with Sneak Attack, call it 30), goes into the water, and lives on Luck. The second, on the tower in the rain, is the same two men with Spike having seen every move once: advantage on Insight from the eye, Stop-Hit on the misses, Stunning Strike when it lands. Vincent lets Elektra finish it. That is the one fight on this sheet he was given rather than won, and he knows it.

The Real Folk Blues

sessions 25 and 26 · the end · Level 20 · Monk 14 / Rogue 6

The headline block: AC 17, 183 HP, six Luck Points, Nine Lives, the grenades

The feat, checked. The Red Dragon tower is forty Guards and Veterans (CR 1/8 to CR 3) across a lobby, an elevator and a stairwell, with one man coming the other way. Grenades for the lobby (3d6 in ten feet, three of them), the Jericho with Sneak Attack for the hallways, hands for anything that closes. He takes every hit that lands: by the top he is under 50 and has spent the luck. Vicious is a CR 13 katana master with the same AC he has and the same number of attacks; the exchange is one Stunning Strike that doesn't land, one Sneak Attack that does, and a slash across the chest that Nine Lives turns into 1 hit point. He walks down the stairs, points a finger at the men who are left, says the word, and the sheet stops there, because the show does.

A DM's dial

There is nothing to turn down. Every number here is a human's. If you want him on a table next to the other sheets in this set, the honest thing is to tell the player what the sheet already knows: he is the best fighter in any room that has only people in it, and in a room with anything else, his job is to get out the window.